MURDER MAY INVOLVE MANY

Killing of George Long Pre-meditated, Say Police—One Brother Gives Up

SOME others besides John and Jessie Knight, the brothers who are said to have murdered George Long, chief of the Sulphur and Sonite department, will probably be arrested in the crime, according to information gleaned at police headquarters Monday. The killing occurred at the fire office of the Sulphur plant Saturday night. John Knight, eye witnesses say, first shot his brother, then his brother fired back from an automatic pistol that had penetrated the police against him.

Following the killing, both men fled town, the one who is said to have had the knife, gave himself up to officers Sunday afternoon. His brother, Jess, is believed to be still in hiding in the vicinity of Packington. Officers are confident that he will not be able to escape.

The killing, one of the most brutal that has occurred for years in Oklahoma City, grew out of the refusal of Long to give Jess Knight a place on the fire force, according to officers.

Long was employed on the Morris fire department. The police were of the opinion that he was sheltered by friends Monday, but that he would tell his brother's example and give himself up before attempting to escape from the city or state.

Sheriff Blanton and Chief Nichols were in consultation over letters which were expected to have bearing on the case Monday morning, and it was believed that three or four other men would be arrested before night. Officers were inclined to think that the killing was pre-meditated, and that the men were held before the crime was committed. Just what the others who are believed to be mixed up in the affair had to do with planning the murder is not yet known.

R. H. Brown, a prominent Duncan attorney, was in the city Monday discussing a case with Parole Attorney Knock.
